FROM "THE TIMES" OF THE AUSTRIAN TH TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

A SLACKENING OF THE OFFENSIVE.

While it is far too ston to say that the German attack on the Marne and in Champagne has been definitely repulsed, there can be no doubt (says The Times) that so far, the enemy have been most emphasically checked. In the new battle there is no point of comparison with the rush to the Somme in March, more with the sweep across the Aisne a couple of months ago. The Germans have had to struggle desperately for every inch they have gained, and the Paris Press declares that east of Rheims their casualties at some points amounted to 6 con fine control of the first day of the hattle, circulated by wireless, lacks the customary note of jubilation, and possibly the despendency caused by the comparative failure of the enemy's expectations is reduced in Haron Burian's speech in Vienna, which was made in a plaintive minor key. Though speculation as to the purpose of the enemy still takes very varied forms, the milistary authorities, both in France and in this country, are disposed to believe that the often Mary authorities, both in Francountry, are disposed to believe site, as at present conductor serious attempt to break the line. On March 21st the Githé British forces with on a seventy-mile front. On Manced with about thirty divisional front, with a gap in the Blaims. Most, of these thirs. was this the case, that the French artiflers began an intense bombardment an hour before the German guns opened fire, with the result that at some points the enemy's infantry sizes was greatly delayed. The Allies have ever reason for the high hopes which inspire them it their struggle against the greatest effort bled to be made by Germany in this campaigning asson.

THE DEFENCE EAST OF RHEIMS. understood the enemy's intention that a on July 6th the French artillery had begun tire counter-preparations, and on that alone flooded the German lines on the Cl pagne front with no fewer than 150,000 shells. So well informed were they as to time of the offensive that they began a stillery counter-attack an hour before German preliminary bombardment commen and so violent was the French fire that as point the enemy infantry were investigated.

their struggle against the greatest effort like to be made by Germany in this campaigning season.

THE DEFENCE EAST OF RHEIMS.

The crossing of the Marne, telegraphs the Paris Correspondent of The Times yesterday, has not by any means yet become dangerous. The river here is fairly sluggish, running between low banks, and is not more than 80 yards broad. South of Dormans vine-clad hills maintain its banks, and on the right shore there are one or two tittle valleys, down which the enemy can advance. In front of Dormans itself there is a small island which, no doubt, helped the enemy in crossing the river. On the narrow strip of ground gained by the Germans on this side of the Marne they are being continually on the watch, and paying violently counter-attacked, and, far from making progress they are having the very greatest chifficulty in helding their ground. East of Eherms the enemy made no impression whatever, the excellence of the French intelligence services on this occasion probably being largely responsible for the check given to the attack. So well had General Fochis Staff inderstood the enemy's intention that already in July 6th the French artillery had begun effective counter-repressations, and on that day alone flooded the German lines on the Champage front with no fewer than 150,000 gas shells. So well informed were they as to the imm of the offensive that they began their transportations, and on that day alone flooded the German lines on the Champage front with no fewer than 150,000 gas shells. So well informed were they as to the imm of the offensive that they began their transportations, and on that day alone flooded the German lines on the Champage front with no fewer than 150,000 gas shells. So well informed were they as to the feelings of humanity in our enemies, the feelings of humanity the realised much as alone flooded the German lines on the Champage flooded the German li

The Special Correspondent of The Times with the French Army telegraphs:—The number of German divisions employed in the first day of the attack appears to have been fourteen on a 21-mile front west of Rheims, and fourteen on a 21-mile front west of Rheims, and fourteen on a 21-mile front west of Rheims, and fourteen on a 21-mile front west of Rheims, and fourteen on a 21-mile front in Champagne, and in each case about the same number of divisions in the second line, making a tosel of fifty-six. The second line, making a tosel of fifty-six. The second, Third, and Fifth Divisions of the Second, Third, and Fifth Divisions of the Guard, and Jaeper Divisions, Instead of being evenly distributed over the whole front, they were massed on certain selected points, on the battering ram principle; also it is known that the settled objectives which were to have been worked, for yesterday, the line of Epermay Montmirail, and for to-day, the second day of the offensive, Châlona. A TEST CASE.

The appointment to the Food Ministry (says The Times) still hangs fire. Opposition to Major Anor, who is generally considered to be the best choice, is said to have shown itself in what may be realled the "Old Gang" of the Unionist Parte, who dislike his independence and progressive ideas. The confidence placed in him by many of the Labour leaders is regarded with many of the Labour leaders is regarded with the confidence of the many of the Labour leaders is regarded with the confidence of the many of the Labour leaders is regarded with the confidence of the many of the Labour leaders is regarded with the confidence of the many of the Labour leaders is regarded with the confidence of the many of the confidence of the many of the confidence of the many of the confidence of the con many of the Labour leaders is regarded with supprison, while his well-known enthusiasm for the Miniary of Health achem runs counter to the half-measures favoured by the Local Government Board. If this is believed in humself, in favour of the appointment, he has come to a small but significant tendered in humself, in favour of the appointment, he has come to a small but significant tendered in humself, in favour of the appointment, he has come to a small but significant tendered in humself, he has come to a small but significant cal evolution. The divergence between the older and the younger members of what was once the Unionist Party is obviously growing. Mr. Lloyd George's Government was based originally on a bargain with the former, but it is the latter, for all their independence, who give him the most intelligent and loyal support. Moreover, it with the younger men that the fature lies. Has the Prime Minister the wisdom to realise the strength of his own position, and how little it depends in these days on any more party allegis.

The House of Commons (says The Times) and risen last night before the news of the East characty election reached the Lobby. The result is undoubtedly a surprise for the political prophets, who had anticipated neither so swepting a victory for the Government candicate, nor such a fiasco as Mr. Belsber's politicate, nor such a fiasco as Mr. Belsber's politicated in the politicate in the po

FOREIGN MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

While it is far too acon to say that the ferroan attack on the Marne and in Champagne has been definitely repulsed, there can be no doubt (says The Timice) that, so far, the encour have been most emphatically checked, in the new battle there is no point of comparison with the rush to the Somme in March, or with the sweep across the Aisne a couple of months ago. The Germans have had to struggle desperately for every inch they have gained, and the Paris Press declares that east of Rhems their casualities at some points amounted to 65 pr. cerd. of their attacking atrength. It is not surprising, therefore, that the German accounted the first day of the battle, circulated by wireless, lacks the customary note of jubilation, and possibly the despondency caused by the comparative failure of the enemy's expectations is reflected in Baron Burian's speech in Vienna, which was made in a plaintive mimer key. Though speculation as to the purpose of the enemy still takes very varied forms, the military authorities, both in France and in this country, are disposed to believe that the offensive, as at present conducted, constitutes a serious attempt to herak through the Allied line. On March 2lix the Germans attacked the British forces with forty divisions on a fixty mile front, with a gap in the centre around Rheims. Most of these thirty divisions have been identified, and it has been found that they centain a faulty anticipated by General Foch. So made was a fixty and the proportion of the reserves of Prime Rupprecht of Bavaria, which have been forought down from this, it is at least increasingly clear, not only that the German gene of the control of the reserves of Prime Rupprecht of Bavaria, which have been forought down from the North. VON SEIDLER MAY HAVE TO RESIGN.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF THE AUSTRIAN THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE

ALREADY CALLED A FAILURE.

During the day the Germans were not able to resume their general attack, broken by us yesterday. They made violent efforts to enlarge their local successes during to-day, the fighting being particularly stubborn south of the Marne. Our troops defended, foot by foot, an attempted enemy advance up the river We counter-attacked the enemy on the front St. Agnas la Chapelle-Mont Houdon.

Our troops took these two places, and carried their line to the ights which dominate Marne Valley, near La Bourdonnerie.

The Franco-Italian troops repulsed several enemy attacks, and maintained their positions.

East of Rheims the enemy made a number of attacks, following violent artillery fire, but everywhere in vain, and suffered very heavy

GERMAN DESPATCH. Tuesday.

Army Group of the Crown Prince Rupprecht .- In some sectors the fighting activity has revived. To the east of Ayette an enemy night advance was repulsed, as also was a strong enemy attack to the east of Hebuterne. New local engagements developed here during the night.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince. Between the Aisne and the Marne and to the east of Château Thierry there were lively artillery duels. In minor enterprises and during an advance across the Marne to the south-west of Jaulgonne we broke into the enemy lines, and brought back some prisoners. Yesterday, to the south-west and east of Rheims, we penetrated into a part of the French positions. Survey troops took a very important share in the preparations for the conduct of the artillery battle. By their devastating effect the artillery mine-throwers and gas-throwers, together with our tanks and the flame-throwers of our infantry, opened the way into the enemy positions.

The Army of Colonel-General von Boehm has crossed Marne, between Jaulgonne and east of Dormans. At daybreak the pioneers transported the storming troops across the river, and thereby created the foundation for the success of the The infantry stormed the steep slopes on the southern bank of the Marne, and under their cover, the construction of bridges was carried out. In steady fighting we thrust through the stubbornly defended wooded country of the first enemy positions, and drove him back towards his rear lines, at Conde La Chappelle, Comblizy. To the north of the Marne we also wrested from the French and Italians the first position between the Ardre and the Marne.

In the evening we were fighting to the east of the Chatillon-Buchery-Chaunivay line. The Armies of Generals von Mudra and von Einen attacked the enemy in Champagne, from Prunay, east of Rheims, as far as Tahure, and in an encounter with the enemy, who was avoiding our attack, we captured the first French position.

To the south of Nauroy Moronvillers, we pushed forward across Cornellet-Hochberg-Keilberg ridge of heights, through the crater field of last year's spring battle, as far as the Roman road to the north-east of Prosnes.

On the Marne front the enemy delivered violent counter-attacks. There were some local successes to the south-west of Rheims. To the east of Rheims the situation is unchanged.
